

The 1990 35th Anniversary Special Edition
Thunderbird Super Coupe

In 1990, Ford marked the 35th anniversary of the Thunderbird with a special edition of the range-topping Super Coupe. Finished in black with titanium-colored lower panels, a dark blue accent stripe and commemorative “35th Anniversary” badges, just 3,371 examples were built.

Ford was serious enough about preventing counterfeit cars that the fender badges were designed to disintegrate if removed, and to protect the cars, each came with a custom-fitted cover supplied by the same company that sews covers for Rolls-Royce.

It's amazing how quickly the years go by when you spend your life in the fast lane. And that's just where Ford Thunderbird has been for the past thirty-five years.

Since the day it was introduced, Thunderbird has kept up an exciting pace. The distinctive look and exhilarating performance of the early Thunderbirds earned them "classic" status almost immediately. And over the years, Thunderbird has won countless honors, including Motor Trend Car of the Year awards in 1958, 1987 and 1989.

The newest Thunderbird, like so many that came before it, is again changing America's notions about design. And now comes a special 35th Anniversary limited edition Thunderbird SC that will add even more to the legend.

Looking back, it's hard to believe we've spent thirty-five years on Thunder Road.

But then, as any Thunderbird driver will tell you, time flies when you're having fun.

The 35th Anniversary Ford Thunderbird

Time flies when you're having fun.

Buckle up—together we can save lives.
